I think that farming is very important for our lives and it is a wonderful job. Two people gave me chances to think about becoming a farmer in the future. They are my grandmother and Mr. Watanabe. They taught me a lot of things. Today, I would like to talk about them.

First, I will talk about my grandmother. I respect her because she taught me about farming. She grows carrots, onions, tomatoes and eggplants. They are so delicious. Every summer, I visit her and grow tomatoes and eggplants with her. I enjoy helping her work.

One day, I asked her, “Have you ever thought about quitting farming?” She always worries about the (①) because rain, snow, or strong wind sometimes damages the vegetables. And there are many things to do to grow vegetables. Sometimes it looks too hard. Then she smiled and answered, “No, I have never thought about quitting it. Every day, I enjoy taking care of my vegetables. They are like my children. So I talk to them and hear their voices. Even vegetables know how much I love them. I believe this.” I felt that she loved farming so much. She also said, “I met a lot of people. They also grew vegetables and we became good friends. We always help each other and enjoy talking.” Then she said to me, “Why don’t you become a farmer? You will feel happy when people enjoy eating your vegetables.” Because of her, I became interested in becoming a farmer.

Next, I will talk about Mr. Watanabe. He visited my class as a special teacher last year. I think some of you may remember him. He told us about his job. He grows many kinds of vegetables. In the class, he asked, “How many people want to be a farmer in this class?” A few students raised their hands. He said, “I know that most young people don’t want to become farmers. So today, I want to tell you that farming is a great job.” He smiled and said, “My vegetables go to stores, and finally go to your houses. Some of you may eat them.” He kept talking about his job. “I also export my vegetables to foreign countries. I am proud that (②). People from other countries sometimes visit me to learn how to grow vegetables. They often ask me, ‘What is the most important thing to grow delicious vegetables?’ I always answer that a warm heart is the most important. But you will feel happy when your vegetables grow very well.” At the end of the class, he said, “My vegetables know how much I love them.” I was surprised to hear these words. I remembered that my grandmother said the same thing. And he said, “I want you to visit me and experience farming with me. If you experience farming, you can understand that farming is a wonderful job.” His story impressed me. Then I decided to become a farmer in the future.

Now, I’m thinking about visiting Mr. Watanabe to learn more about farming. In the future, I will grow many kinds of delicious vegetables like my grandmother and Mr. Watanabe. I hope to see people's happy faces with my vegetables. Thank you for listening.
